STRATEGY // DESIGN // DEVELOPMENT

LONGBOARD: CONTENT MARKETING SITE

1. Version 1 of the homepage will aim for simplicity while achieving the goals, which include introducing the value proposition, introducing some of the valuable advisor resources (e.g. articles initially) and answering key questions avisors have.
2. Items in bold represent links that will be present at launch of phase 1.
3. Version 1 will allow for basic pages that contain text content with images. In phase 2 we will add more rich media and component insert options.
4. Rearrangable components within custom landing pages (e.g. for campaigns, SEO, etc.) will be tackled in phase 2.
5. In phase 1 we will use links to Marketo pages for contact forms and the like. In phase 2 we will work to integrate forms more seamlessly into the site.
6. We will work to add series or "collections" in phase 2, allowing articles and resources to be grouped into special collections (e.g. for advisor resources).
7. Version 1 of articles will allow for basic long-form text content with images. Things like insertion of other rich media, custom components and calls to action will be addressed in phase 2.

LONGBOARD: CORPORATE/FUNDS SITE (Phase 2)

1. The Corporate/Funds site will build on the same CMS platform and borrow from the basic layouts and patterns established in the Content Marketing Site, however we will design a custom "theme" for this site to differentiate it visually from the Content Marketing Site.

Drupal 9: The Most Beautiful CMS Ever!

by Dries Buytaert, 14 January 2020

What we're be going over today

- Finding your idea
- Identifying if "your idea" is already in the works.
- Putting together your initial team and identifying key stakeholders.
- Design & Documentation Process
- The formal processes on submitting your idea to the community.
- Update on the status of the Olivero theme.

The Beginning

Finding your idea

Finding your idea

- What are you passionate about?
- What are you good at?
  - Front-end, design, back-end?
- Is your idea already in the works?

Forming the Band

Putting together your initial team

Identifying your core team

01

The following people are the initiative's coordinators:

- Mike Herchel: Community coordination, project management, front-end development
- Putra Bonaccorsi: Community interaction, front-end development
- Jen Witkowski: Lead Designer
- Jared Ponchot: Design Architect
- Matthew Tift: Community interaction, documentation, and cat wrangling
- Kat Shaw: Accessibility

Identifying Stakeholders

02

How to identify stakeholders?

- Who will make or break your idea?
- Who's the maintainer?
- What Core committers might be interested in your idea?

The following people were chosen as stakeholders:

- Dries Buytaert: Creator and project lead for Drupal
- Angie Byron: Drupal core committer and product manager
- Gábor Hojtsy: Drupal core committer, product manager and initiative coordinator coordinator
- Cristina Chumillas: Drupal usability maintainer
- Lauri Eskola: Drupal core committer and frontend framework manager

Drupal 9 Olivero: Turning Conversation into a Core Initiative

By admin, 10 April, 2020

Rachel Olivero

in memoriam

Validate the designs

Proof of Concept

Key activities we're focusing on

- Investigating the use of the header on scroll interaction on mobile and tablet devices.
- Validating the use of the CSS grid in legacy browsers such as Internet Explorer 11.
- Verifying that the markup is semantic and meets the accessibility requirements.

“The first draft of anything is shit.”

— Ernest Hemingway

Proof of concept

- Static HTML
- Minimal JavaScript (no behaviors etc)
- Not well architected CSS 😜

Designs for new front-end theme for Drupal 9

View Edit View history

Summary

This issue is proposing a new design for the default frontend theme for Drupal 9 (targeted for inclusion in Drupal 9.1). Note this is separate from the new administration theme, Claro, which was just committed to core several days ago.

This new frontend theme will have a modern look and feel based on adjectives and principles that were identified during the design process (more on this below). It will be WCAG AA conformant, support updated functionality in Drupal, and is intended to feel modern going into the future. The theme is named "Olivero" after Rachel Olivero, who was an advocate for accessibility and a Drupal community member (more on that below).

Need

The design of the current default theme (Bartik) has not changed since the release of Drupal 7 in January of 2011. While Bartik has proved itself to be versatile over the years, its design has aged with the years and fails to showcase Drupal's state-of-the-art power and functionality.

Goals

- Updated modern design: Our intention is to design a theme that feels modern and ages well. Design elements such as drop shadows, and gradients are used sparingly while typography, animation and color palettes have been thought out.
- Functionality that supports new features: We want the theme to include support for recent commonly used Drupal functionality such as second-level navigation, embedded media, layout builder, and more.
- WCAG AA Conformance: The theme will be WCAG AA conformant. We will be working closely with accessibility experts and the Drupal Accessibility team to ensure that the theme passes Drupal's stringent accessibility standards with flying colors.

We will work with the community to help ensure that the new theme is aligned with the above goals in order to create a successful theme.

Design Process

The first step was to solicit community feedback within the Drupal Core ideas queue: ~~#3064880: Create new default front-end theme~~. This issue confirmed that the idea to add a new theme is sought after by the community.

Initial Stakeholders

Once we knew our idea was valid and sought after by the community, we moved to identify the stakeholders for the design process that we deemed essential for the theme to be successful, and to help guide us throughout the process. The following community members were identified:

By mherchel on 23 September 2019, updated 8 July 2020

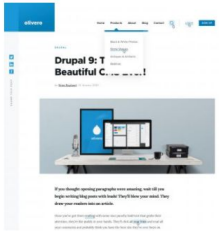
This project is not covered by Drupal's security advisory policy.



Olivero, one of the Drupal core initiatives, seeks to create a new default front-end theme for Drupal with a modern look and feel. We would like to get this theme into Drupal core (not before 9.1), but we also intend to make it work with a Drupal 8 site as a contributed theme. Development of Olivero occurs in this project.

Status: #3111409: [META] Add new Olivero frontend theme to Drupal 9.1 core and eventually make it the default
Plan: #3088378: Designs for new front-end theme for Drupal 9

Getting Involved
1. Read this document (congrats, you're already here!)
2. Look through the Olivero issue queue to see if any issues are not yet picked up. If you commit to an issue, comment on it, and let us know when you expect to post the work.
3. Weekly meetings will be held Monday at 10 am ET (currently 2 pm UTC — but this will change when daylight savings goes away in the US)
1. This meeting:
• happens every Monday at 3 pm GMT (10 am ET).
• is chat only via the #d9-theme slack channel (no audio or video).
• happens in threads so keep an eye on those notifications.
• there are about 5-10 minutes between topics for people who are multitasking to follow along.
• the agenda is public and anyone can add to it. The direct link to the agenda will be posted on the #d9-theme slack channel.
• The transcript of this meeting will be exported and posted on the agenda issue. For anonymous comments, start with a :bust_in_silhouette: emoji. To take a comment or thread off the record, start with a :no_entry_sign: emoji.
Kanban Boards
We're using Contrib Kanban as a way for us to track Active, Needs Work, Needs Review, Reviewed/Tested, Fixed issues. These issues are grouped in a bi-weekly sprint cycle and it's used during our weekly slack meeting to keep track of the status of the project.
• Overview Board
• This board gives you an overview of all of the active issues in a kanban board format.
• Past Sprints
• Olivero: POC Completion
• Olivero: Sprint A | 12/9 - 12/16
• Olivero: Sprint B | 12/16 - 01/03 (Year-end)

Pre-requisites

Before starting, ensure that you are using at least the latest LTS release of Node.js, once Node.js has been installed, we recommend installing Yarn:

npm i -g yarn

For installation in Debian / Ubuntu and other systems, see Yarn Installation.

Download the theme and enter the folder (from https://www.drupal.org/project/olivero/git-instructions):

git clone --branch 8.x-1.x-dev https://git.drupalcode.org/project/olivero.git cd olivero

Install the required packages:

yarn install

Disable caching, see Disabling Drupal 8 caching during development.

Working on CSS

The project uses PostCSS for compiling CSS for better browser support. CSS source files are located in the `css/src` folder. The compiled CSS files can be found in `css/dist`. When making changes, the patch should be include both `/css/src` and `/css/dist` files. (where `src` is where changes were made, and `dist` is the compiled result from yarn).

CSS scaffolding tasks are following the logic of the JavaScript tasks.

Process sources without writing source maps:

yarn run build:css

Datadog monitors metrics, traces & logs from 400+ technologies all in one place.
