Charity: Water

Why fundraise for charity: water?

We're a non-profit organization on a mission to bring clean drinking water to every person on the planet. Thanks to your help, we've funded 13,644 water projects in 22 countries.

100% MODEL

Private donors fund our operating costs so 100% of your donations go straight to the field.

TRANSPARENCY

We prove every water project we build using photos and GPS coordinates on Google Maps.

LOCAL PARTNERS

We work with strong local partners on the ground to build and maintain water projects.

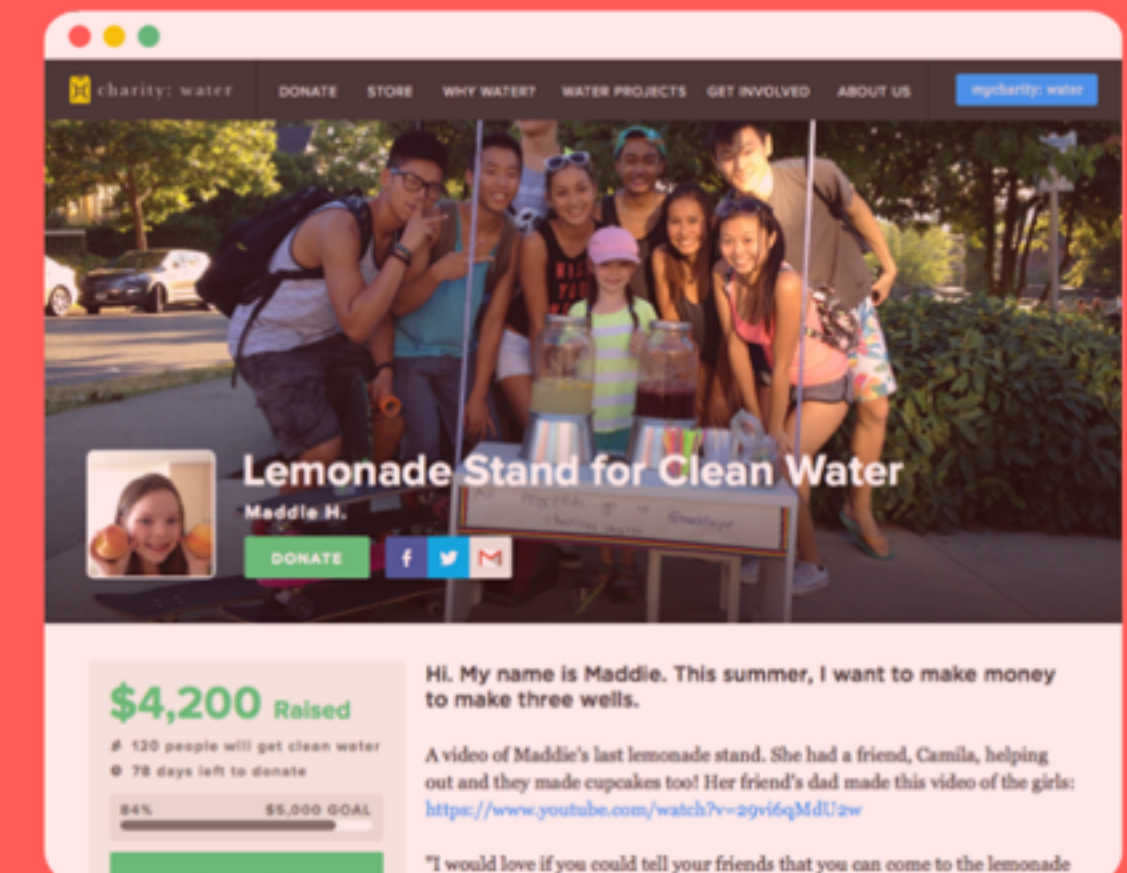

Sponsor a water project.

Starting a campaign is easy.

STEP 1

Decide what to do and create your page.

It only takes a minute to set up your campaign. Decide what to do. Pick a name. Pick a photo. Click, click, click, done! Just like that, you'll be ready to start raising money and bringing clean water to people in need.

Design Skills: Quick Investments That Pay Back:

- Good Typography
- Simple image editing

Good Typography

- Good typography creates a high-end, elegant feel
- Proper line-height / leading makes reading easy
- Hierarchy of text (headings, body copy, quotes, etc.) will effortlessly lead users to where we want them to go.

Making the switch

Comments and ideas about Sketch, its place in design, usage and future.

On november 24th, tuto.com, a french tutorial website interviewed three designers: Jean-marc Denis, Philippe Hong and myself to talk about Sketch and design in general. The questions were spot on and the answers from my peers very interesting so I decided to translate it for my english readers.

This serves as a pretty good follow up to my previous Sketch article, “A month with Sketch 3.0”. A good introduction if you do not know what we are talking about here.

Before we start, let’s get to know our interviewees.

Budget Killers & How To Avoid Them

4 Breeds Of Budget Killers

- Technical underestimation
- Inconsistencies in design
- Misguided design deliverables
- Bad communication

A close-up action shot from a boxing match. A boxer on the left, seen in profile, is throwing a punch with his right arm. He is wearing a black boxing glove with red wristbands. The glove has the 'CLETO REYES' logo and 'HECHO EN MEXICO' printed on it. The other boxer, on the right, is being hit in the face. His eyes are closed, his mouth is open in a grimace, and his head is tilted back. A spray of sweat or water is visible in the air around his head. The background is dark and out of focus, showing the orange ropes of the boxing ring.

Technical Underestimation

Might as well just punch your programmers and your budget in the face. Repeatedly.

How to avoid building products that fail

It's all about needs.

“If I had asked people what they wanted, they would have said faster horses.” Far too often, we hear those words (supposedly spoken by Henry Ford) as a way to justify rushing headlong into executing a so-called innovation before the idea is tested with users. It’s worth noting that not only did Henry Ford probably never speak those words, it also turns out that kind of thinking resulted in “a catastrophic loss of market share from which [Ford] never recovered.”

The lesson we should take from this story is that it’s extremely dangerous to execute ideas without first identifying and testing assumptions about the value of those ideas. We shouldn’t jump to a solution before we understand the problem. And

Solution:

BE. VERY. CONSISTENT.

A firefighter in silhouette is shown from the back, holding a hose and nozzle, fighting a large fire in a building. The fire is intense, with bright orange and yellow flames and smoke. The firefighter is wearing a helmet and a backpack. The scene is dramatic and high-contrast.

Misguided Design Deliverables

Burning yourself out, and your budget too.

Examples:

- Designing the wrong things
- Creating too many design deliverables
- Not designing enough
- Jumping into designs too quickly

Design deliverables have to make both clients and developers happy.
This is not easy.

Different clients require different deliverables.
Accept and embrace this.

Process Is More Important
Than Deliverables.

Deliverables at ThinkShout:

- Content Slice Diagrams
- Wireframes
- Prototypes
- Style Tiles
- Visual Inventories
- Visual Design in Browser
- Visual Design in Sketch
- Codepens

Process at ThinkShout:

- Start broad, then work down to details.
- Turn business goals and content into something a human can use.

Solution:

Focus on objectives, not specific deliverables.

Create a plan before starting.

A woman in a white jumpsuit is swinging through the air, holding onto a chain. She is looking back over her shoulder with a concerned expression. The background is a dark, industrial-looking environment with debris flying around her, suggesting a chaotic or dangerous situation.

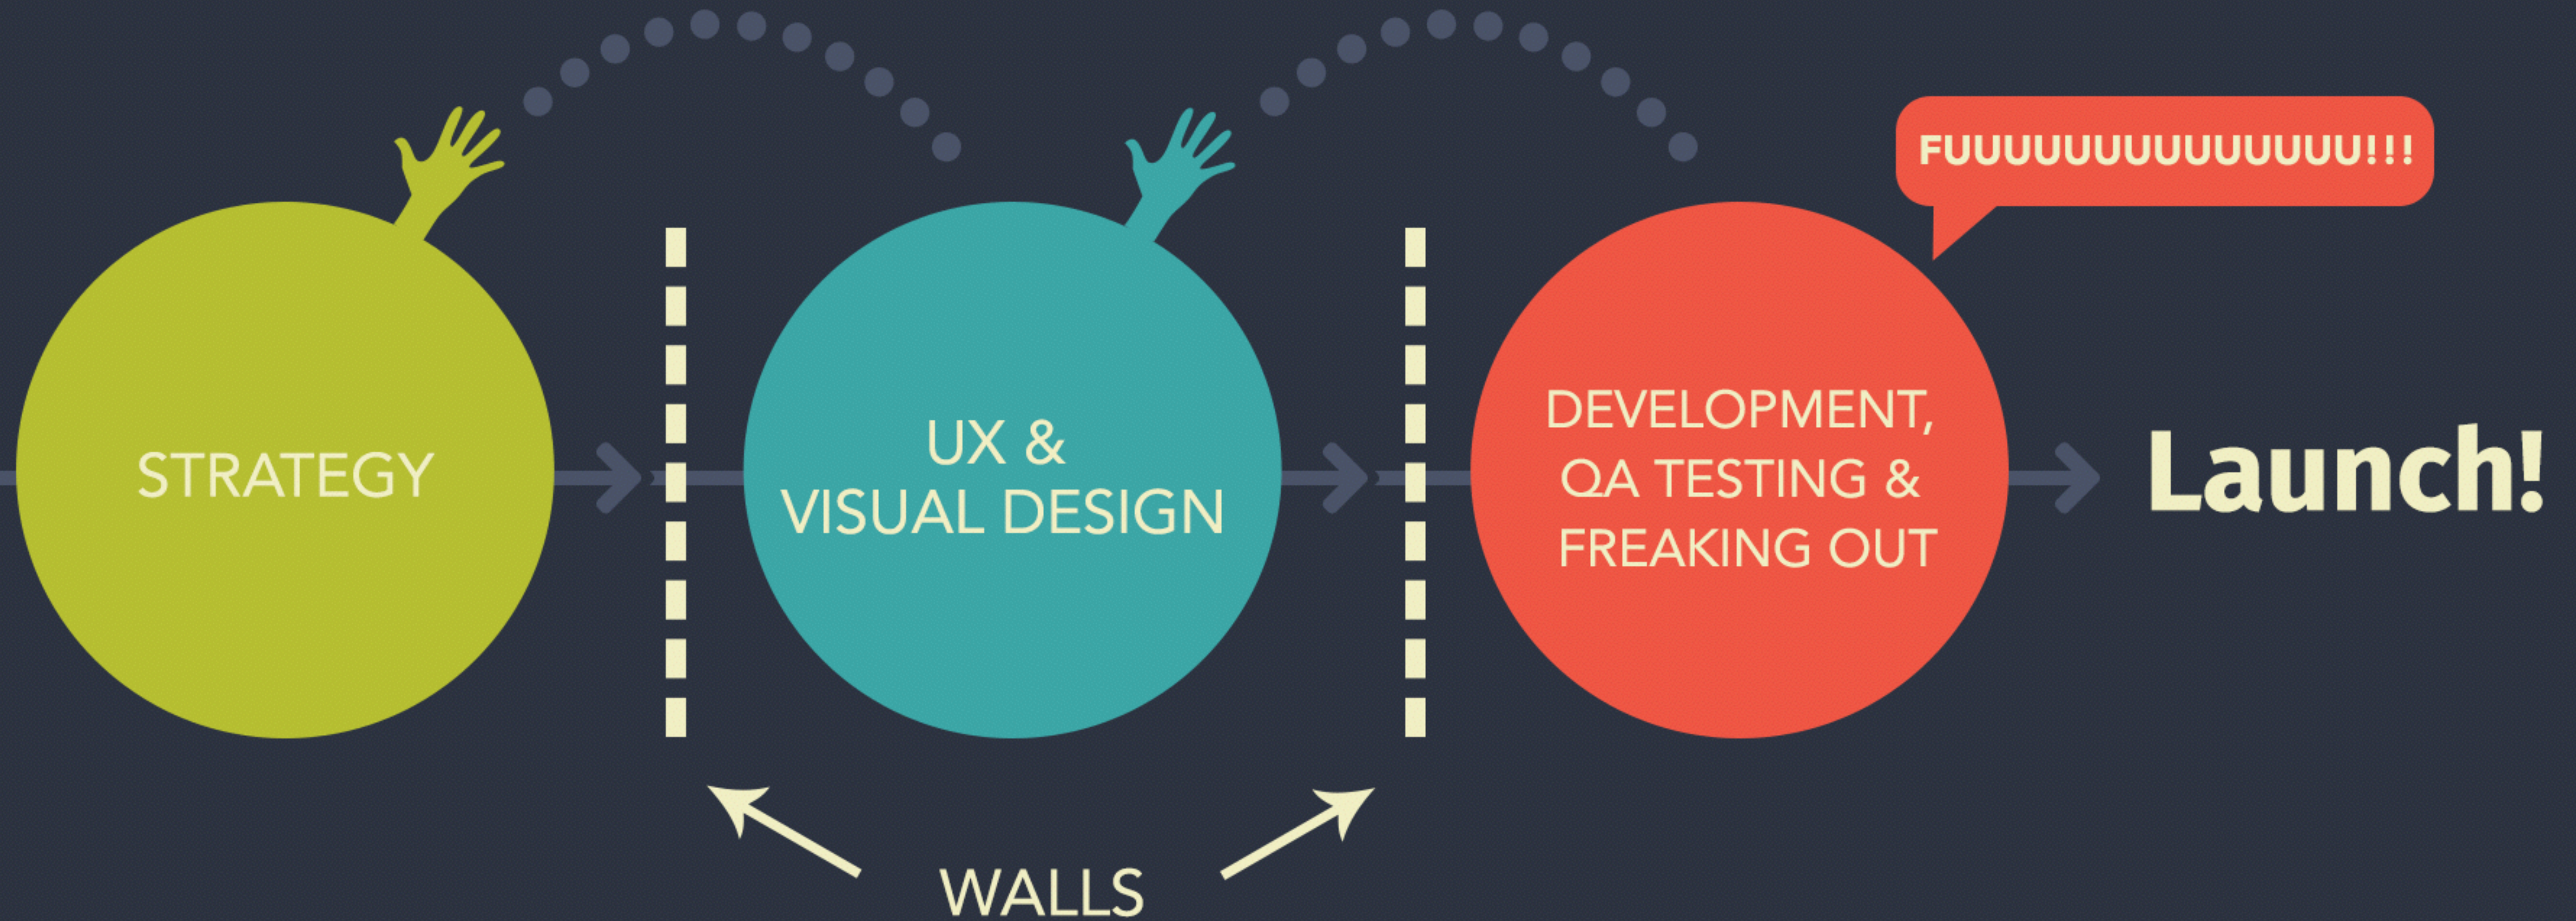

Bad Communication

Like a wrecking ball to your budget

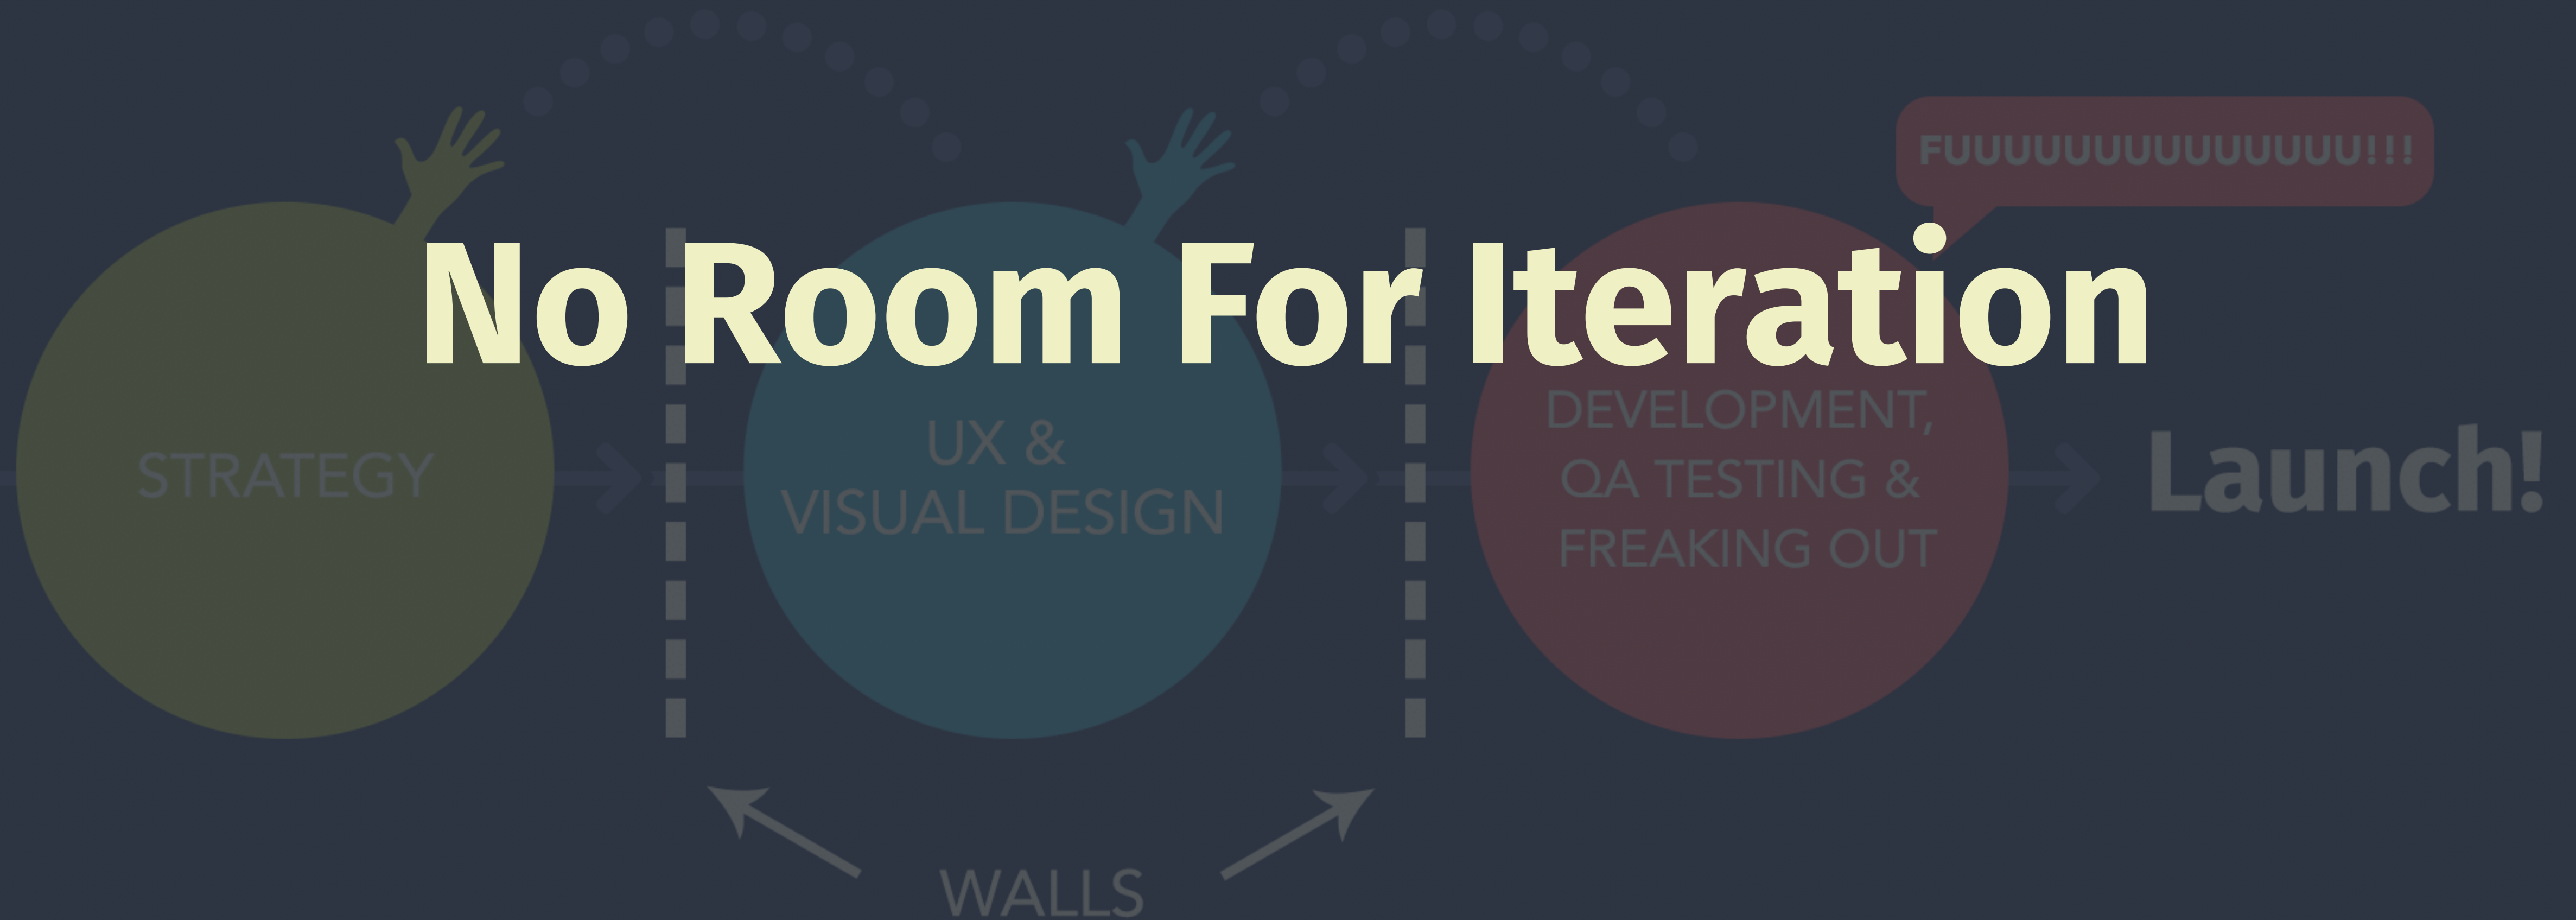

Assumptions Cost Money.

When We Don't Communicate Problems Snowball.

Typical Web Design Process

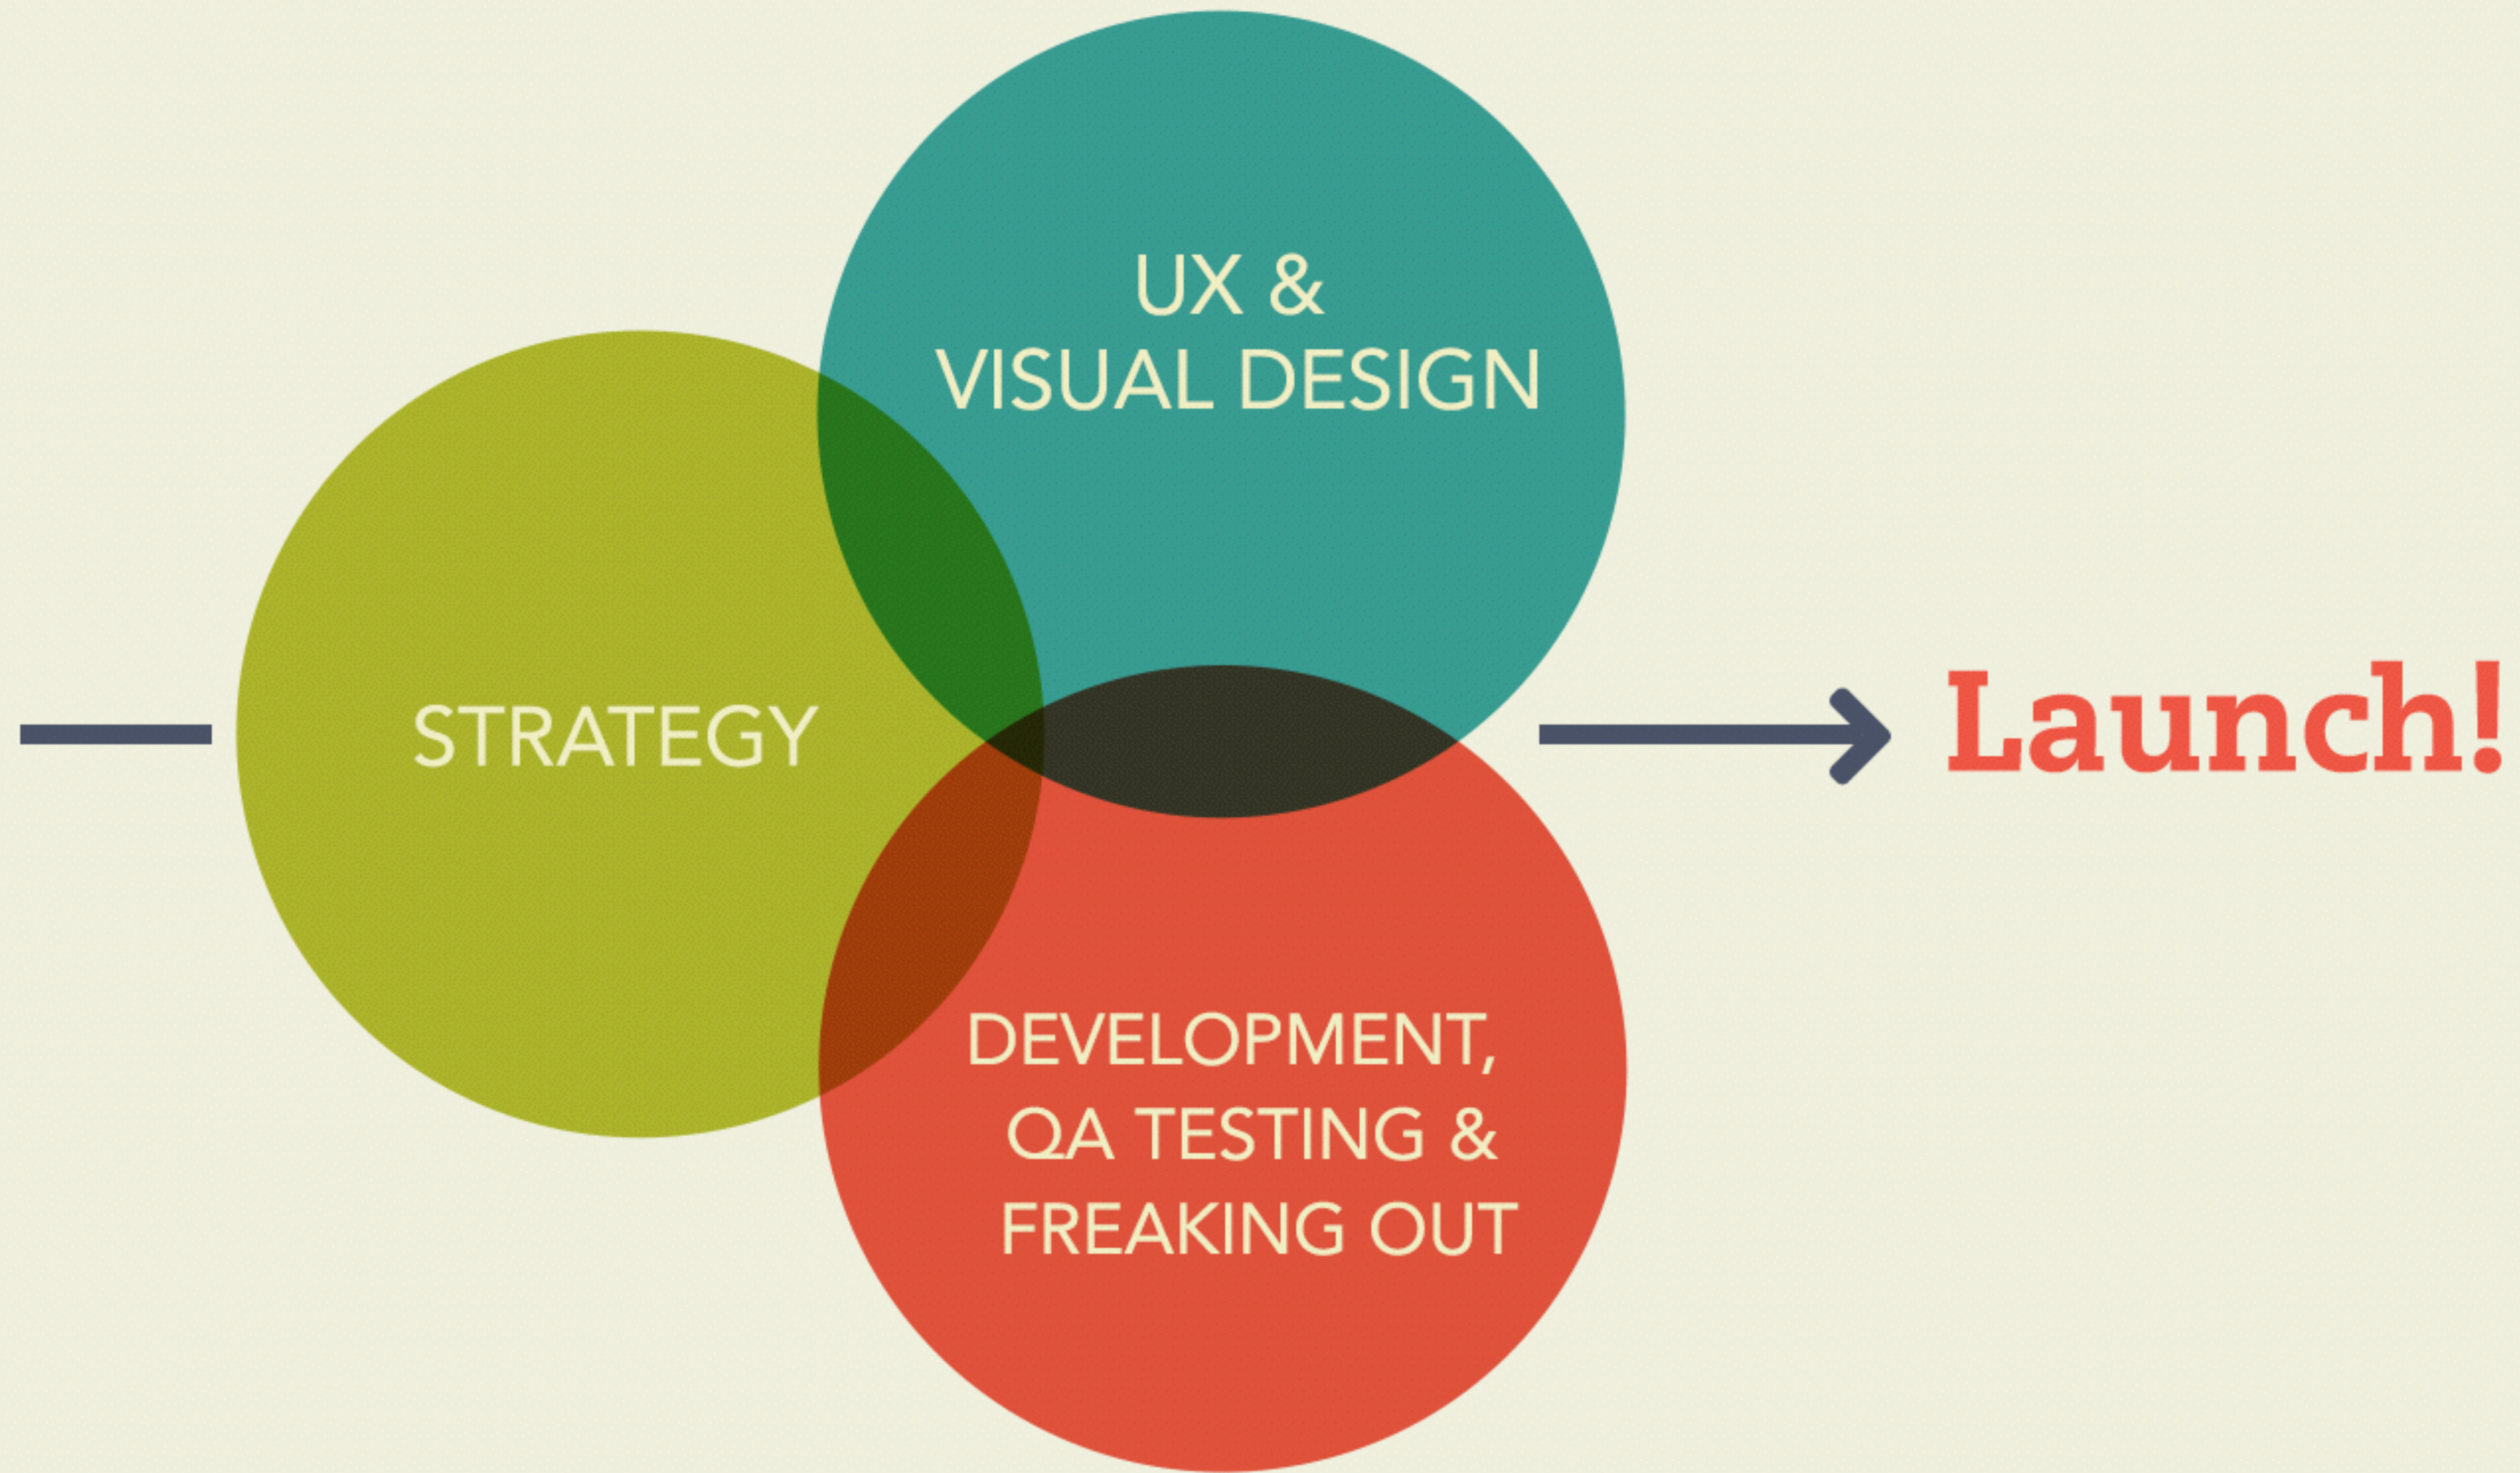

Typical Web Design Process

Example:

- Front loading design only at the beginning of a project
- What happens if something needs design, and your design budget is gone?

A Better Process:

Solution:

Be in constant communication with engineers, PMs and clients. Don't be afraid to ask for clarity.

Final Thoughts & Time Savers

Let Go Of Pixel Perfection

- Wireframes and prototypes can be ugly
- Obsessing over pixels in responsive design is futile
- Shipped is better than perfect

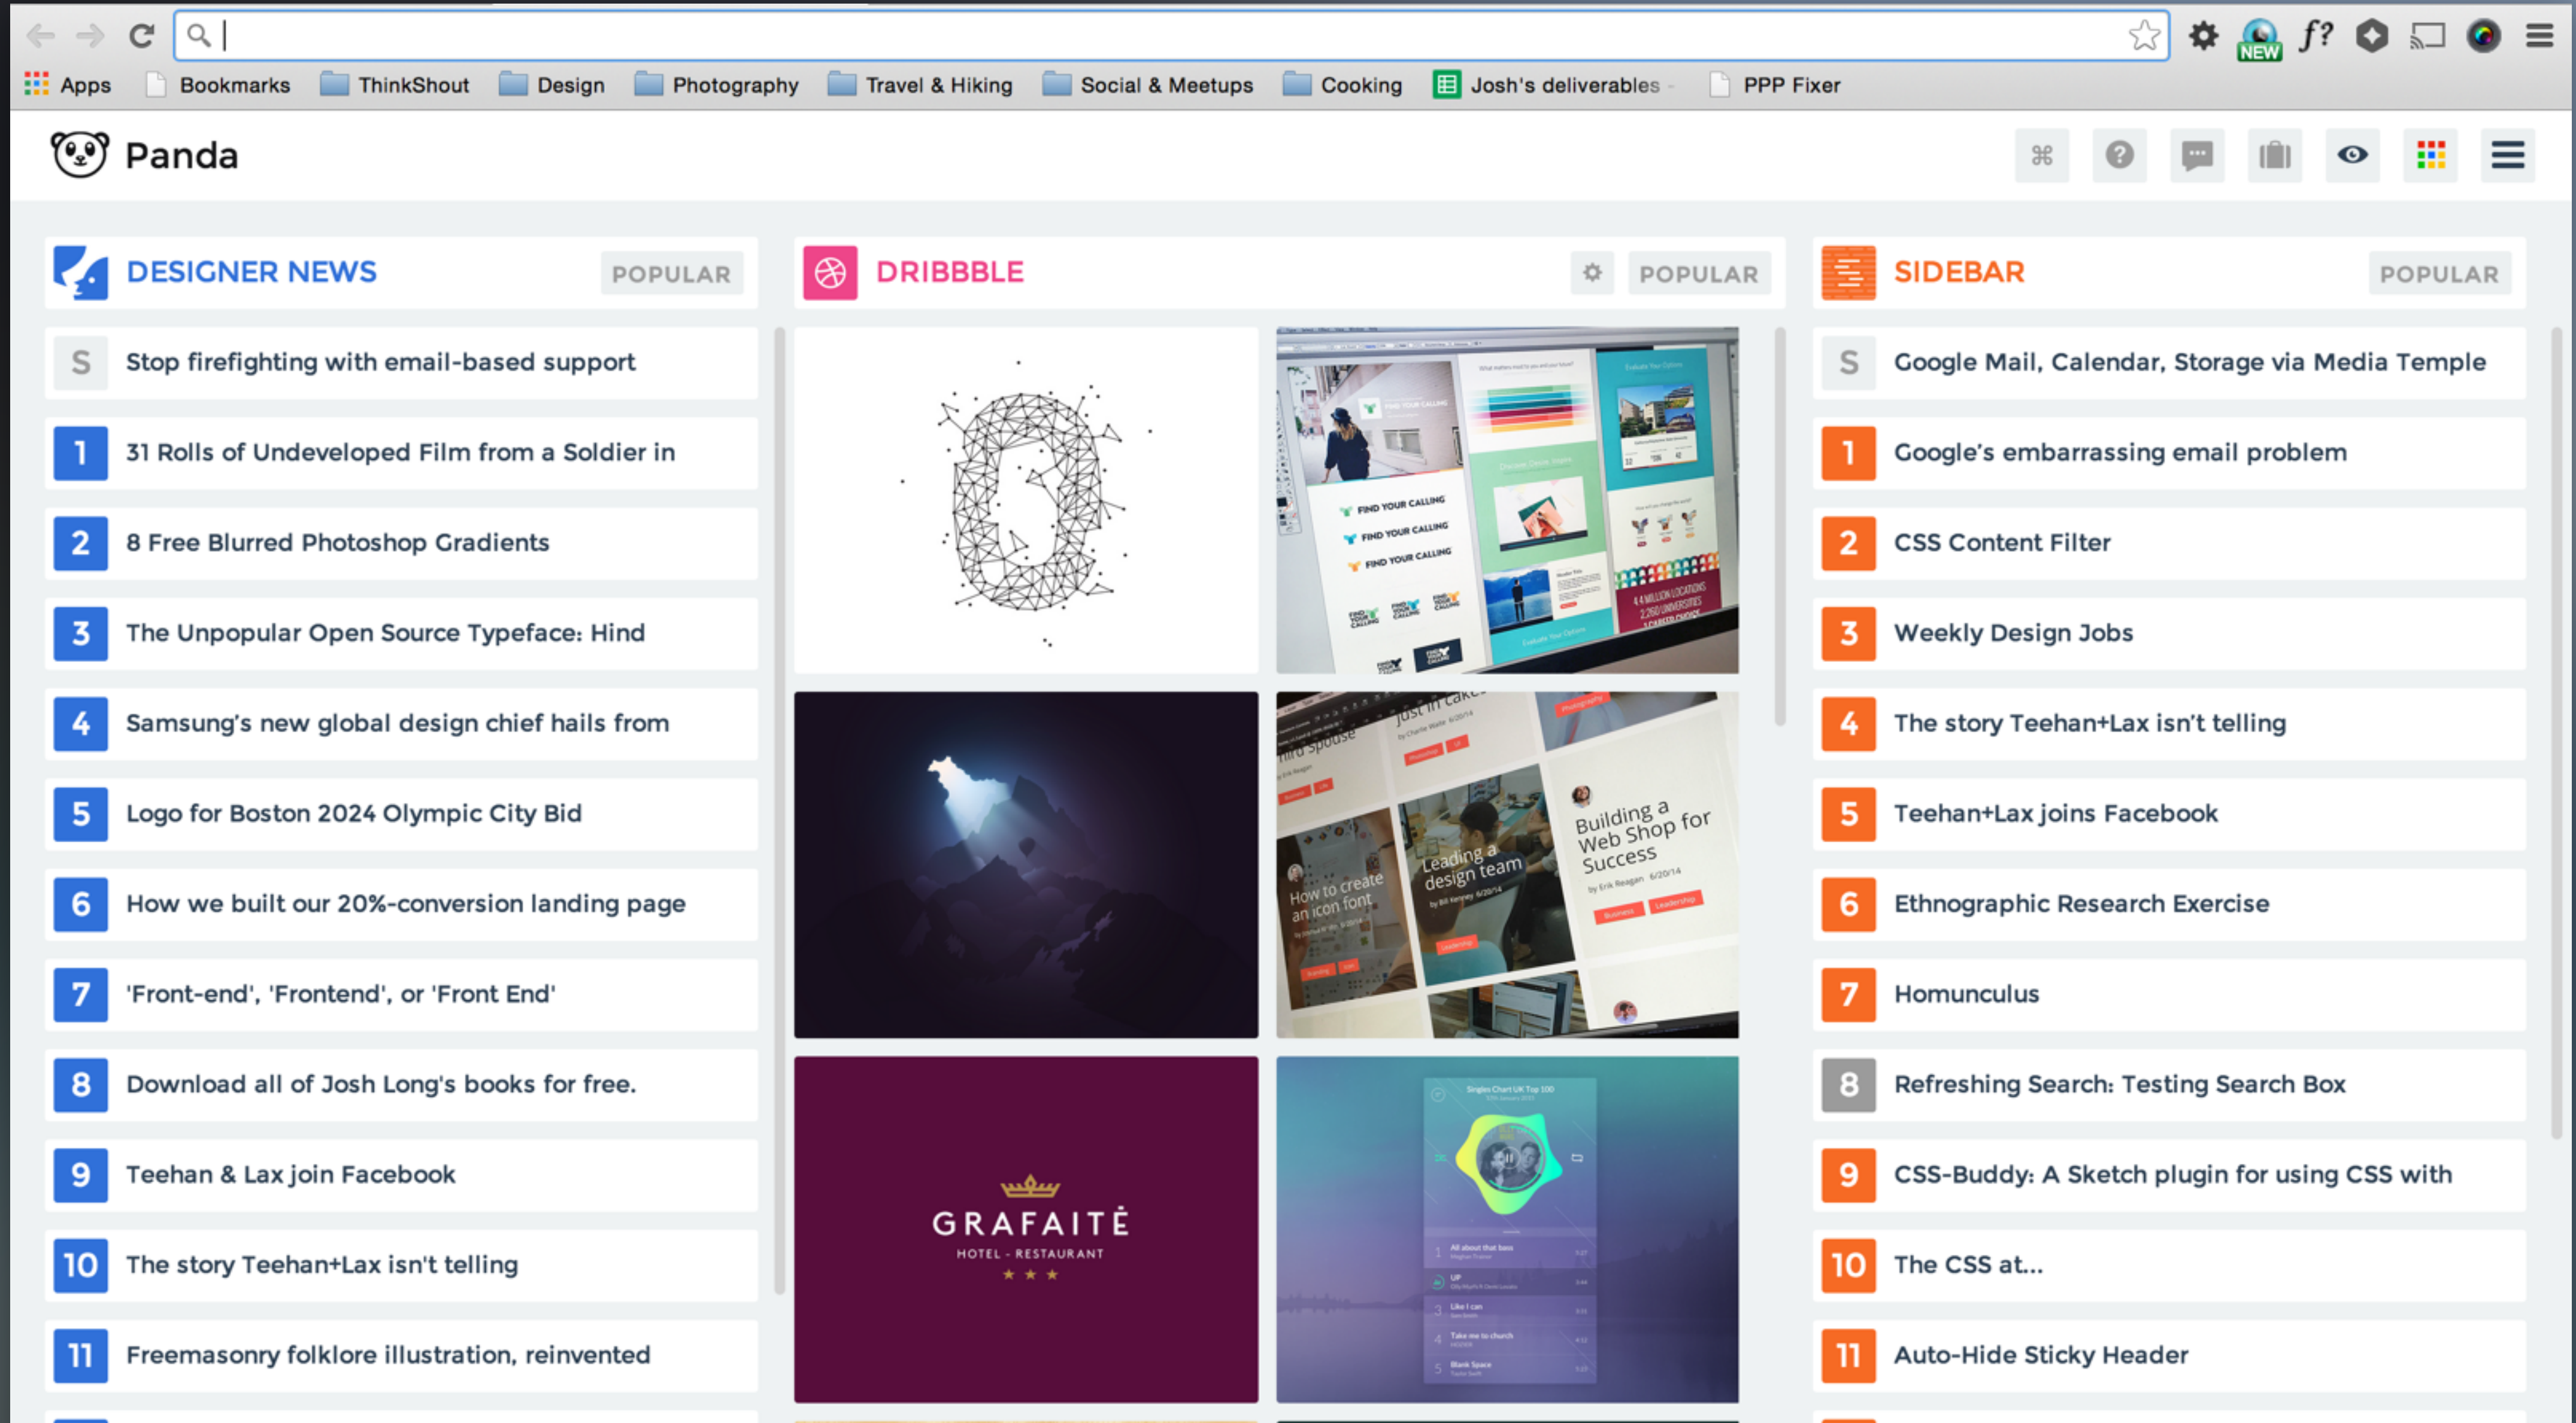

Beware Of The Framework

- Zurb Foundation, Bootstrap, etc.
- Usually includes a lot of shit you don't need
- Great for using out of the box, but a giant pain to customize
- Can be a nightmare to use with a CMS like Drupal
- I recommend for prototyping only.

Stay Inspired & Knowledgeable

- Set aside some non-billable time to keep up with trends and inspiration
- An hour here and there on a project really adds up
- Be proactive on research and inspiration
